

Cooper's Hawk

This bird of prey lives in North America from southern Canada and the United States as far south as Panama. It has a striking red eye, blue-grey upper parts and white underparts with fine, thin, reddish bars. The tail is also blue-grey with black bars.

For the exact colors see: www.birdorable.com